

I joined Westminster 6 years ago with my husband, Owen, after returning to Nashville. I attended Vanderbilt for undergraduate and graduate school before moving to San Francisco for several years. We have two children, Miller (5) and Ellen (2). I've enjoyed teaching preschool Sunday School and serving on the Christian Education Committee for the last few years. It has been a pleasure to serve the church community in this capacity and am excited about the opportunity to serve on the session.

I have a background in special education and currently work at Vanderbilt for the Treatment and Research Institute for Autism Spectrum Disorder (TRIAD) at the Vanderbilt Kennedy Center as the Associate Director for Early Intervention. In this role, I work with caregivers and providers across the state to support children with autism. Outside of work and church, I enjoy playing tennis, doing yoga, and hiking.
